

CRACK RELAY SQUAD AT NAVAL STATION

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Great Lakes, Ill., Feb. 5.—When set out to do something at the Great Lakes Naval training station, they usually accomplish it. When the United States entered the war, Captain W. Moffett said he would have 5,000 men in training at the Great Lakes in the spring of 1917. The spirit at the world's largest naval training station.

Chief Yeoman Frank Hill, coach of the crack relay team, believes that his one mile relay squad will break the world's record before the indoor track season ends. And those who are familiar with the way they do things at Great Lakes are satisfied that the present record will be broken before the season ends. Outside of the determination to set a record, there is something else needed, and Coach Hill has it in his mind. Any one versed on track topics will agree with him after the names of Andy Ward, Eddie Hall and Jimmy Burke are mentioned. And then comes "Speed" Boedeker from the Columbia A. C. of St. Louis, who runs with the best flyers in Missouri. Ward is the present 100 and 220 yard National A. A. U. champion and is regarded as one of the world's greatest sprinters. Eddie Hall holds the Central A. A. U. record for the mile, and is listed among the great distance runners of 1917. James Burke formerly represented the Boston A. A. U. and has successfully engaged Ted Meredith, Earl Eby, Abel Kiviat and Tom Halpin in match races. Boedeker is one of the most promising young runners in the east next month and will bring together all the crack military relay teams of the training camps. Here the Great Lakes four will race the most important team contests in Kansas City and Chicago.

MANY LEAGUE CLUBS TO TRAIN IN TEXAS

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Chicago, Feb. 5.—Plans of major league baseball will be given to the fans of Texas this season. At least seven big league clubs will play there this spring.

Five clubs will start in the Lone Star state to prepare for the 1918 season, and at least two others will visit there on their way to the north. The New York and St. Louis Nationals and the Chicago Cubs will play in Texas. The Detroit Americans have selected training camps in the state.

The Cleveland Americans, who will train at New Orleans, will meet the New York Nationals at Dallas. The Cincinnati Reds are expected to come from their camp in Alabama and cross bats with the Detroit Americans. The St. Louis Cardinals will have a training camp at Jacksonville, Fla. The following schedule shows where the clubs will train:

American.
Chicago at Springfield, Tex.; St. Louis at Palestine, Tex.; Detroit at Waxahatchie, Tex.; Washington, at Tampa, Fla.; Philadelphia, at Jacksonville, Fla.; Boston, at Hot Springs, Ark.; Cleveland at Hot Springs, Ark.; New York at Macon, Ga.

National.
New York, at Marlin, Tex.; St. Louis, at San Antonio, Tex.; Chicago, at Piquette, Mich.; Boston, at Miami, Fla.; Philadelphia, at St. Petersburg, Fla.; Pittsburgh, at Jacksonville, Fla.; Cincinnati, at Montgomery, Ala.; Brooklyn, at Hot Springs, Ark.

MOTOR BOAT RIVALRY IS WARMER THAN EVER

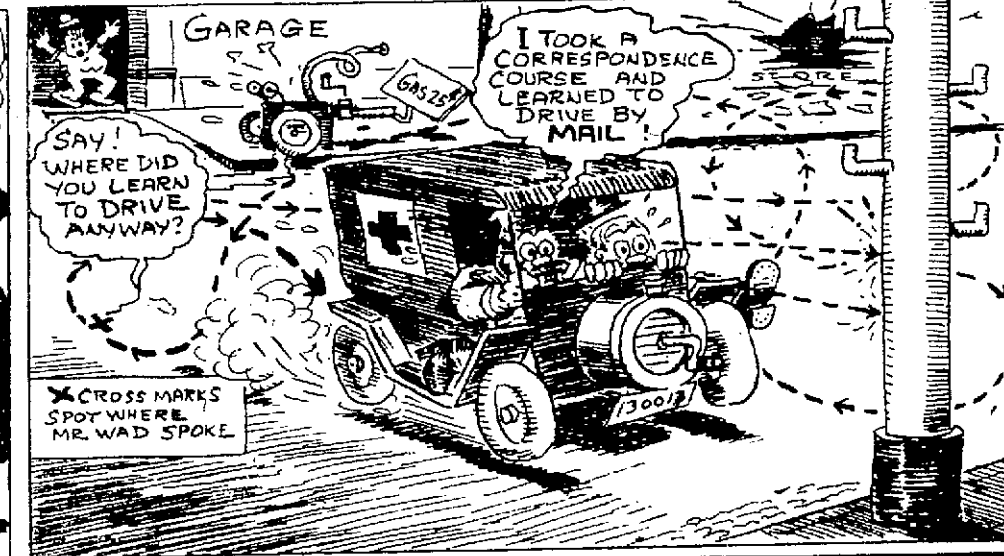

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Detroit, Feb. 5.—The keen rivalry between motor boat enthusiasts of Detroit, Minneapolis, Toledo, Cleveland and eastern cities now is warmer than ever. It is an open secret that several clubs are quietly building boats for this summer that will smash all of the remarkable records made in the past five years.

It has been learned from good authority that Detroit motor boat owners are preparing to spend at least $5,000 for a new craft. Rumor has it that the boat will have a speed of seventy-five miles an hour. Chris Smith of Alpena, Mich., who has been prominent in the construction of the boats which have revolutionized speed racing, has been quoted as declaring that the mile-a-minute craft will be considered obsolete in a few years. Smith's ambition is to build a speeded boat that will travel 100 miles in one hour. He believes that seventy-five miles will be attained this year.

The two college pitchers the St. Louis Cardinals are reported as about to sign for trials in the spring are said to be Parker Twombly of Lehigh University and Edward Langdon of Pittsburgh University. It was rumored early last fall that Langdon had agreed to give the Cardinals first option on his services if he decided to take up professional baseball.

Mule Watson of the St. Louis Cardinals scored six victories for the Cincinnati Reds last season. Jim Keenan beat the Robins six times in nine chances and scored six victories over the Pirates.

FOOZLED MANY BUT STARRED AT THAT

Risberg (above) and Kopf.

Swede Risberg of the Chicago White Sox and Shortstop Kopf of the Cincinnati Reds made more errors at short last season than any others in the two big leagues, but they were valued for their work even so. Risberg made sixty-eight misplays and Kopf made sixty-eight. They were not valued too much by their managers, however, as each is the sort of player that goes after everything in sight. Both were regarded as fast men on their jobs.

The German Lutheran bowlers again took the English Lutheran bowlers into camp after a hard struggle at the "Y" alleys. The feature of the game was the closeness of the scores throughout the game and had it not been for the fact that the German Lutheran players were on the average stronger bowlers, the outcome might have been different. Heise of the English Lutheran bowlers was the star roller of the affair and not at any time did any other bowler come anywhere near his brilliant sport. The standing of the players is as follows:

STATE CURLERS GATHER FOR ANNUAL MEETING
Portage, Wis., Feb. 5.—Curlers of the state were gathered here today and opened the tenth session of the Wisconsin Curling association.

Three main events with four prizes in each are scheduled. The Phillips Curling club trophy, Conkle trophy and Hotel Portage trophy are the chief incentives.

Teams were entered from Duluth, Superior, Phillips, Medford, Waupaca, Galeville, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Mauston, Milwaukee, Chicago, Columbus, Cambria, Pardeeville, Poyntelle, Dekorra, Endeavor and Arlington. Officers of the association are: Pres-

COAL BINS PRESENT EMPTY APPEARANCE

No Coal Has Arrived in the City Since Sunday and Present Supplies Are Rapidly Diminishing.—No Relief in Sight.

No relief for the present serious coal shortage is in sight at the present time. Although a few cars of bituminous coal arrived in the city Sunday, not a ton of coal has come in since that time and the dealers' bins are beginning to look empty.

Fuel Administrator Earle stated this morning that he had sent in a distress call to W. N. Fitzgerald, state administrator, but as yet had been promised no relief. It is thought that the few cars of coal in transit will arrive in the city by Thursday, but no assurance can be given of this fact.

If worst comes to worst the supplies of the theatres and schools will be commandeered and distributed to prevent people in their homes from freezing.

The closing of the four theatres, the rooms of the Eagles, Elks, Knights of Columbus, Lakota, Elque, and American clubs, and the closing of all the graded schools, took effect yesterday morning and it is estimated that several hundred tons of coal will be saved in this way. This can then be used as a reserve supply if conditions warrant.

The common council and fuel administrator in Beloit yesterday decided to follow the action of this city and close the theatres, schools and dance halls or a similar period. Beloit is up against it, as far as coal is concerned, and should have taken this action long ago in order to prevent hardships which now seem to be inevitable.

Jokesmiths Push Fun at His Name But Girl Will Push Army Truck Building
Jokesmiths and paragraphers the country over have been having considerable fun at the expense of Christian Girl, whose job it is to see that the army gets all the motor trucks it needs. But Girl is pushing truck production faster than the jokes can push fun at him. He, like the war secretary and the assistant war secretary, is a Cleveland, Ohio, native. He is president of the Standard Parts Company in civil life.

Barney Dreyfus is angling for
Catcher rank Snyder of the Cardinals and it is expected that the deal will be closed within a short time.

Connie Mack may not have a cinch on the cellar after all. Joe Cobb really is thinking about enlisting in the army.

Dan Howley, who has managed the Montreal club for the past few years, is being mentioned as the successor to Jack Hendricks as manager of the Indianapolis club.

WOLFE'S READY TO GRAB THE CROWN
Kid Wolfe, Jimmy Dunn's star bantam, is now not after a title bout with Pete Herman after decisively defeating Johnny Ertle in Cleveland recently. With Ertle aside Wolfe believes, that he will be the bantam king once he gets a chance against Herman.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

There is the chance that the war tax on baseball admissions next season will cause some annoyance among the fans. The baseball owners would do well to consider the clubs while at least and bear in mind that the theatrical business has not been unharmed by the war tax. If baseball is going to suffer in the east as other amusements have suffered it might be a reasonable idea for the baseball magnates to knock the tax off the price of baseball tickets or in other words pay the tax themselves. Then again they might advance their prices in a way that would split the difference between the fan and the club. The war tax burden might be shared fifty-fifty. A fan about to buy a seventy-cent ticket would be more willing to pay fifty cents straight than to have the trouble of digging up 7 1/2 cents war tax. Baseball clubs generally would do better if they pocketed the loss of a few cents on every ticket and sold the seat at a straight price than if they hung the war tax sign on every fan's nose.

Because of the National league restriction on the length of the training period there will be no sending of pitchers ahead of the main team this spring. Most of the National league stars have notified their pitchers that they will be expected to report in "condition," which means they are expected to start at home a couple of days in advance of the training period.

Jeff Tesreau, first to sign a new contract with the Giants, now has been the first to obey Manager McGraw's request for removal of tonsils. Tesreau had the operation performed in New York last week. Jeff evidently means to stage a comeback this year.

Sherrerd Smith, of the Robins led the National league pitchers last season in picking runners off the bases. He picked fourteen runners off first base and one off third.

Business Manager Bobby Quinn of the St. Louis Browns, having taken stock of his outfield talent, finds that all he has left from the left side of the plate, whereupon he announces that he is in the market to buy or trade for a right-handed hitter who also can catch flies.

There has been a decided lull in the trading season since Connie Mack sent Molins to the Red Sox. Perhaps this is only the calm before another outbreak.

Barney Dreyfus is angling for
Catcher rank Snyder of the Cardinals and it is expected that the deal will be closed within a short time.

News Notes from Movieland

BY DAISY DEAN

Lottie Briscoe is coming back. Do you remember her? A few years ago, when she worked for Lubin, was widely known and his widely loved. Now it is announced that she will soon be featured by Metro in the screen adaptation of Edith Wharton's "House of Mirth" in which Emma Vaden will play the leading role. Miss Briscoe was discovered by Mr. McKee Rankin at the age of four years in St. Louis and played the boy in "The Runaway Wife." She starred for three years in "Edith's Burial" and after that created the principal female part in Jules Wythe's "For Fair Virginia." She was with Richard Mansfield in "Richard III," and later appeared in stock. She entered moving pictures seven years ago.

ANITA STEWART NOW ADMITS SHE IS MRS. CAMERON
Anita Stewart is Mrs. Rudolph Cameron. More than that, this winsome Viagrator star has been a wedded woman for some time past, despite all contradictions, though the truth of her romance came to light but a few days ago.

It was the searchlight of the law which made it necessary for Miss Stewart to confess to the truth of her matrimonial status. She is defendant in proceedings instituted against her by Viagrator, to prevent her from breaking her contract with them. Called to the stand in the action, she was asked the customary question: "Are you married or single?"

"I would rather not answer," the star returned, before her attorney could enter an objection.

Though the court allowed her answer to stand, alert newspaper men took it up, following argument, with the result that Miss Stewart admitted that for some time past, she had been Mrs. Cameron. For professional reasons, she explained, she had decided to keep it quiet.

Cameron and Miss Stewart appeared together in several pictures, including "Calver's Rebellion." They have been acquainted for several years, and their engagement has been rumored repeatedly. Cameron is a member of the Lambis, and has appeared in many of their gambols in past seasons.

FACTS COUNT.

When you come right down to brass tacks, facts count. What has been accomplished amounts to a great deal more than the argument of some advocate of the old method of doing business, when ten men were pulled hither and yon by personal advisers as opposed to the business administration of the men who are chosen by all the people, not a few residents of individual wards. One man can spread more political fabrications in a day than a dozen men can straighten out in a week. The whole fabric of the opposition to the commission form of government can be voiced in the one thoughtless personality of individual now or then.

It is sufficient number of people have been convinced for making a change in the personality of the various individuals of the city government, they can elect a commission to recall him and elect his successor, if successful.

The coming election does not decide who will be the nominee for mayor. If the present struggle directed at the mayor is the primary comes in March, when this is decided, and later comes the election in April. Just why some of the leaders of the present move who have sought offices under the commission form of government should be so bitter in their denunciation of its benefits now is not hard to explain.

It is politics, pure and simple, sometimes an ambition government has relinquished and they failed in their aspirations. The old story regarding the commission form of government is the same as the old story regarding the commission form of government. All that can be said in reply is that the published was a lie and that the mayor was not in fact a man who did not.

Convenience and necessity. The struggle which the country has reached on the fuel question, as evidenced by the fuel administrators' order shutting down industries, plants, and closing the schools and colleges, is a struggle between the necessities of life, and the mere conveniences. We have upset our entire industrial fabric, on account of fuel shortage. Meanwhile we have been allowing mere conveniences to run along as usual.

The center of the fuel trouble is the railroads, as we have enough coal mined. The government has cut off passenger trains, but a great many are still being run for pleasure travel. These trains will have to be cut up. If some people postpone their vacations until spring, there will be no suffering. Many business men could save long trips by use of the telephone.

Around large cities, frequent service of suburban trains are run. In the morning and at night when workers are going in and out, this is a necessity. But many trains are run in the middle of the day to accommodate women who go to the big cities on shopping expeditions. Many of these trains are a mere convenience, not a necessity.

While good progress has been made in cutting off needless lighting by blaring electric signs, yet in the average town more light is burned up than is necessary. For a few weeks a lot of these lights could be cut out without hurting anyone.

A great many people could shut off the heat from a few rooms of their houses, and live as their fathers used to. There are a hundred ways in which fuel could be saved so as to keep the factories running. Everyone must help. No one should complain because of trifling inconveniences.

FIRST ON THE GROUND.

Great fortunes are not always the result of superior skill. Quite as frequently they come from ability to think quickest. The merchants who make the first appeal to a certain popular want, are the ones that get the cream of the trade. The way to attract attention in retail trade is to tell the public about a line of goods and advertise it thoroughly.

When that is done the idea gets into the minds of a great number of people and the merchants whose notices they have seen are showing push and enterprise in handling certain lines of goods.

People will go down and see an attractive line displayed in the window of a non-advertising firm. But if they read a few days before the advertising of a similar line of goods somewhere else, the first man they called their attention keeps it. They will go around first to look at the store that first told them about its product.

Every week the enterprising dealer has some new line of goods that the public wants. Advertising enables him to get those goods promptly before the public. While other dealers will wait for weeks or indefinitely for the public to come around and see their stuff, the advertiser gets their appeal in first. People look upon them as the headquarters for those goods, the places where they can be had to best advantage, where the largest assortments are kept, and the best prices are given.

It is a hard proposition to beat an advertised store. By the time its competitors have caught up to where it was, in any particular, the advertised store has closed out that particular line of stock and taken up something new. It is always ahead of the game, and it pays for the public to patronize that kind of place.

Someone asks what has become of the man who used to oppose a five per cent increase of railroad rates under private control of the roads? Well, last heard from, since the government got the roads, he was kicking because they didn't increase passenger fares 50 per cent.

Some one asks what has become of the man that used violently to oppose the idea of a standing army of 200,000 men. Well, about now he is kicking because the government hasn't 3,000,000 in training.

Instead of shutting down factories and migration plants for lack of coal, why not try taking off a few passenger trains carrying pleasure travelers, amusement seekers, and shopping excursionists?

It is hoped that the people who wouldn't save twenty per cent of their wheat flour will like war bread with fifty per cent wheat, now made necessary by unreadiness of many people to co-operate.

That formidable looking paper is not an examination test for a university professor in psychology, metaphysics, and advanced philosophy, but merely a draft questionnaire.

There is a very general belief that everyone can get more pay without increasing the prices of commodities.

OUT OF IT ALL.

Out of it all shall come splendor and gladness,
Out of it all shall come madness and out of the sadness,
Cheer and finer the world shall arise.
Why then keep sorrow and doubt in your eyes?

Joy shall be ours when the warfare is over,
Children shall gleefully romp in the clover,
Here with our heroes at home and at rest,
We shall rejoice with the world at its best.

Not in vain, not in vain, is our bright banner flying,
Not for naught are the sons of our fond mothers dying,
The gleam and despair are not ever to last,
The world shall be better when they shall have passed.

So mourn not his absence, but smile and be brave,
You shall have him again from the brink of the grave,
In a wonderful world 'neath a wonderful sun,
He shall come to your arms with his victory won.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

ROY K. MOULTON

IN THE GOOD OLD ANTEDILUVIAN DAYS.

"I need a new gown for the dinner at Mrs. Stonehammer's," said Mrs. Skinkclothes.
To her noble spouse, and he sallied forth
With his good hickory club to get the gown.

He would see the gown coming afar
Walking on four legs and sniffing the air.
It would be covering an antediluvian Woodchuck or Gumpwad or Whangdoodle.
Mr. Skinkclothes would hide himself behind a convenient rock, which had been left.

There for that purpose, and when the gown came trotting along he would hit it in the face and knock it cold. Then he would separate the gown from the form which had been displaying it and would hurry home.
Mrs. Skinkclothes would outshine all the Society Ladies that night. There never was a dressmaker's bill.

And still some chumps try to make us believe that we have it on the antediluvians.
Where do they get that stuff?

Agriculture is looking up in England. All the big estates are under cultivation. In other words, the noblemen are raising potatoes nowadays instead of holl.

The Japs are foolish. Just the other day when it comes to sitting down to the peace table, they will be there with bells on and napkins tucked under their chins all ready for the good gravy.

And, without putting a man, a dollar or a ship into the price of the victory repast. Oh, simple children of the East, we sure love your nerve.

A philanthropist wants all the billboards converted into homes for the poor. Claiming, no doubt, that instead of bill boards, the poor now have only board bills.

URGES EMBARGO ON FOODS TO HOLLAND

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Amsterdam, Feb. 5.—The question whether, and to what extent, Holland is responsible for the continuation of the war by her food supplies to the Dutch newspapers. C. J. K. Van Aals, head of the Netherlands Overseas Trust, in his recent open letter to President Wilson pleaded for the removal of the American government's embargo on food shipments to Holland, one of his arguments being that the continuation of Holland's trade with the central powers, while of vital importance to Holland itself, is of small account, so far as aid and comfort to the entente's enemies is concerned.

An article in the Amsterdam Telegraph from entente side—of American origin, it is hinted—replies to Mr. Van Aals's arguments by showing that there were exported from Holland to Germany of potatoes, points flour, eggs, rice, cheese, margarine, sugar, fish, meat, fruits, peas and beans $18,355 tons sufficient to feed 1,200,000 soldiers for a year.

The same authority calculates that in 1916 Holland imported from overseas $18,241 tons of cereals, flour, coal, rice and dried fruits and comes to the conclusion that Holland exported more than twice the quantity she needed for the sustenance of her own population—hence the restriction placed upon these imports by the United States government.

Now comes Prof. J. Van Hamel, a Dutch writer note, who in support of Mr. Van Aals's contentions, puts the case this way: Assuming that the entente authority's figures as regards the exported food values are correct, how far would a year's Dutch exports go to feed the 120,000 inhabitants of Germany and Austria-Hungary? That, he says, is the way the question ought to be looked at, and the answer is three and one-half days.

But the figures, he declares, are not correct. Prof. Van Hamel produces a detailed schedule, also based on official statistics, showing that the aggregate exports of the articles named amounted not to $18,355 tons, but to $80,000 tons, or roughly 30 per cent less than was alleged.

His conclusion therefore is, that a whole year's exports from Holland to Germany are just sufficient to keep alive the joint population of Germany and Austria-Hungary for three and one-half days, less 20 per cent, or two days, ten hours and forty-five minutes.

IF CLEVELAND CAN'T GET TAXES ON JOHN D'S MILLIONS NEW YORK FIGURES THAT IT WILL

With Cleveland and New York both fighting for taxes on John D. Rockefeller's millions officials hope that one city or the other will get some big money. John A. Zangerle, auditor of Cuyahoga county, in which Cleveland is situated, has renewed his attempt to collect on $211,000,000 of Rockefeller's personal property which he failed in 1914 when the supreme court ruled John D. was not a resident of Cuyahoga county since he only spent his summers at Forest Hill, his estate in East Cleveland. And working with Zangerle is Mayor John F. Hylan of New York city, who says that if John D. escapes Zangerle on the grounds that New York city is his home, New York city will collect the tax. Hylan, by the way, says Rockefeller's holdings are closer to $750,000,000 than $311,000,000, claiming the war has enriched the oil king the difference.

SPECIAL ELECTION CALLED ON FEB. 26

MAYOR FATHERS ISSUES PROCLAMATION THIS MORNING AND SETS DATE FOR SPECIAL ELECTION.

NOW UP TO THE VOTERS

Reasons Why Petitions Were Insufficient are Set Forth in Proclamation—Date is Favorable.

There has been filed with me, as Mayor of this city, a petition containing the signatures of 780 citizens and electors, requesting that the people be called upon to them the question of the abandonment of the commission form of government, and for a return to the aldermanic form. It has been my thought and opinion that this petition is insufficient and illegal for the reason that no one of the electors has been qualified for the purpose of signing it, and for further reason that it should have been filed with the city clerk. But after a careful consideration I have decided that these points may not affect the validity of the election, and have therefore determined to promptly submit the matter to the people at the polls. It is important that this election be out of the way as soon as possible in order that the voters may have full opportunity to consider the selection of suitable officials under whatever form of government they see fit to adopt. Now, therefore, I do hereby order and direct that a special election be held in the City of Janesville, on Tuesday, the twenty-sixth day of February, 1918, at which time shall be submitted to the people the question "Shall the Commission Form of Government be Abandoned?" and that such election, be in manner and form conducted the same as a general city election and the city clerk is hereby ordered and directed to publish notice of the same, as by law provided.

JAS. A. FATHERS, Mayor.
Dated Feb. 5th, 1918.

Mayor James A. Fathers today issued the above proclamation calling for the special election at which time the question of whether the city shall return to the council form of control or maintain the present commission of three members will be voted on by the citizens of the city. It is an advisable day for the voters to go to the polls, as the mayor due to many reasons which were carefully gone over by him before the call was issued.

February 25, as it fell on a headless Monday, was considered by the mayor as a possible date for the election, but due to the fact that there is a possibility that the headless Mondays will soon be abandoned the following day was determined upon. Monday would have been an advisable date if the program of the government was certain of being carried out because a large percentage of the voters would have time to visit the polls to cast their ballots.

The mayor in his proclamation sets forth the facts incident with the filing of the petitions and the steps that he took after they were filed. Although he considers that they are insufficient, he is so far as they lack the affidavits and were not filed with the receiving clerk of the city, the city clerk believes that the question should be put up to the people for their decision immediately.

With the election being called in the latter part of February enough time will be given to make arrangements for the elections which will soon follow whether the present commission is continued or not. The election for the candidates for mayor under the commission rule is set for March 19, at which time Mayor Fathers' successor will be voted upon. As ten days notice for filing petitions is given, the date of the present election will make it possible to carry out the plans under either form of city government which is the will of the people.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Frank Tupper.
Notice was received Monday of the death of Mrs. Frank Tupper of Newcastle, Calif. Mrs. Tupper will be remembered by her many friends as Grace Kirk, who was born in Janesville, graduated from the city schools. She was a faithful member of the First Presbyterian church in this city until going to California to make her home after the death of her husband, Frank Tupper, who died last September. Mrs. Tupper met with an accident last December which materially hastened her end. She had been a patient sufferer from that time until death suddenly released her spirit. She leaves to mourn her loss one brother and four sisters: John Kirk, Mrs. L. A. Kirk, Mrs. E. J. Kirk, Mrs. L. A. Kirk and Miss Sara Kirk of Los Angeles, California, and Mrs. George H. Williamson of Newcastle.

With Mrs. Tupper's death another sublime and beautiful character passed out of the world's existence, but not out of the hearts of her many friends whose strongest tribute to her memory is that knowing Grace Tupper was to love and to suffer and to die here.

Remains were interred in Newcastle, California.

FIFTY-SEVEN MEN IS REMAINDER OF DISTRICT'S QUOTA

Orders to Call Out Deferred Percentages of Original Quota for Mobilization on Feb. 23 Not Yet Received by Local Board.

Although official orders for the calling of men February 23 to be given, the deferred percentages of this district's quota have not been received by the local exemption board, they are expected within a few days. Provost Marshal General Crowder yesterday announced that all original draft quotas which had not been entirely filled, would be filled by registrants of the first class.

Sixty-five percent of the quota from this district was sent last fall, but since that time no orders have been received relative to the completion of the quota. When such orders are received, however, fifty-seven men, or thirty-five percent, will be drafted into military service and no doubt sent to Camp Grant. They will be taken according to their serial numbers.

As enough men have already passed their physical examinations for general service, the only steps necessary to be taken when orders are received, will be to issue cards to the first fifty-seven men qualified for service.

Several registrants, not knowing of the discontinuance of the physical examinations until the new regulations were announced, appeared at the post office this morning, but were turned away and told to await another call. The new regulations are expected to arrive tomorrow and no doubt examinations will be taken up again next week.

DAMAGE FROM FIRE WAS OVER-ESTIMATED

Contents of Building Owned by Fifield Lumber Co. Were Not Damaged by Fire Yesterday.

Although no definite knowledge relative to the extent of the damage done to the contents of the building has been gained, the loss sustained at the Fifield Lumber company yesterday afternoon will not reach the proportions which were at first estimated. Due to the large amount of glass and hardwood flooring stored in the warehouse at the time of the fire, the damage was estimated to be about six or seven thousand dollars.

This morning it was found that no glass had been broken by the fire department in bringing a halt to the blaze, and that the flooring, although soaked with water, could be salvaged. The actual damage done to the building itself will not reach three hundred dollars.

A small chimney fire, which resulted in no damage being done, called the fire department to the home of Cecil Richards, 431 South Franklin street, last evening at 8:15 o'clock. Due to the cold weather affecting the working parts of the alarm box the department was somewhat hampered in getting the alarm. The parts worked so slow that the message was not accurately received. In a statement this morning Chief of the Fire Department Henry C. Klein said that he has found that the weather has affected the alarm boxes to a great extent and that the alarm is not always satisfactory. He urges that anyone sending a call to the department be sure to check their message and get the service which they want.

REFUSE TO DELIVER THEIR MILK AT THE PRESENT LOW PRICE

Many Milk Producers of Surrounding Farms Keeping Their Milk Rather Than Bring It to Sell at a Loss.

Rock county milk producers are on a "passive" strike and are sending no milk to the outside distributing plants. The Rock County Milk Producers' association as an association professes to know nothing of the strike, but it is generally understood that the farmers are all in accord with the movement to accept nothing less than $3.22 per hundred pounds for their milk and should this price be set aside for something less there is no telling to what length the milk producers will go.

The price of milk, $3.07 per hundred pounds, set in Chicago by the milk commission, is not official or final, it is regarded by the farmers as an inside tip, which the larger distributors received from members of the commission and for this reason the farmers inaugurated a "passive" strike. There is a possibility that the price of milk will still be fixed satisfactory to the farmer.

E. R. Craft of the Janesville Pure Milk company said that his company was receiving all the milk which it uses, as it was previously understood that it is willing to accept the Association price of $3.22 per hundred pounds. He also said that the larger distributors received from members of the commission and for this reason the farmers inaugurated a "passive" strike. There is a possibility that the price of milk will still be fixed satisfactory to the farmer.

Kee and Chapell Dairy Company received very little milk up to noon today, according to E. R. Craft. He also said that they had shipped six carloads of milk to Chicago yesterday.

The fixing of prices which the milk producers are now in the hands of Federal Food Administrator Herbert Hoover, according to information received this morning, as the findings of the milk commission which was in effect the Chicago milk price, is not at all satisfactory to the farmers, who consider that the price was fixed out of prejudice towards the producers in favor of the milk distributors. The findings of the milk commission did not tend to lower the cost of milk to the individual consumer.

The "passive" strike of the milk producers continued to grow yesterday according to the latest advices received from Chicago and Milwaukee. Deliveries throughout the Rock county were appreciably smaller. Anvalley, Elgin, Collet and Lake county all reported that fewer farmers were coming to the bottling plants, although there was no evidence of a "passive" strike at any of the points as far as the distributors were concerned. The distributors were obtaining milk from outside sources was met by a statement from the milk producers that they would not accept the Chicago district price, but would accept the price of $3.22 per hundred pounds.

Officers of the Rock County Milk Producers' association refused to speak of association business, but said that the producers had not met for several weeks.

MANY ALIENS HAVE REPORTED TO CHIEF FOR REGISTRATION

Over fifty alien enemies signed blanks before Chief of Police P. D. Champion yesterday.

Over fifty alien enemies were registered at the office of Chief of Police P. D. Champion in the city hall yesterday, according to the report issued this morning. From six o'clock in the morning, the time of opening, until eight o'clock at night, the chief and his force of men were busy filling out the registration blanks of those who appeared. Due to the fact that three blanks must be made out for each individual and the finger prints taken, three men have been put into service by the chief to care for the registrants.

Today the number of alien enemies appearing was not as large as that of yesterday, although some put

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON
LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Is it wrong for a girl of eighteen to go to her mother's house and stay all day if she has been going with him for about a year and his mother invites her to come?

(2) I am a girl of twenty and have been going with a fellow for several months, and he turned me down for another girl, and then he came back and asked me to go with him. What would you do if you were in my place?

(3) My girl friend is eighteen and her mother treats her mean and has asked her to leave home several times. The boy she has been going with has asked her to get married and go with him. He has some money and owns property and could make a good living. Would you go with him if you were in his place?

(4) There is a certain girl in my town and she pretends to be my best friend and then she goes around and tells lies to break up the relationship. I have never seen her since. I ought to stop running with her? She is leading my sister to tell lies about me. What would you do if you were in my place?

HEALTH TALKS

TRAINING THE NERVE

It requires nerve to take a cold bath. No matter whether it be a cold bath or a hot bath, no matter whether it be a limited bath or a complete bath. The nerve it requires is called the vaso-motor nerve or system of nerves. This automatic system controls the caliber of the blood vessels and thus regulates the distribution of the blood. If the nerve works, you warm up and feel stimulated and refreshed. If the nerve is weak, you feel chilled. If you happen to have some slight chronic disease of the lining of the nose or throat or bronchial tubes or whatnot, if you are a regular cold-warmer you'll declare you are "taking cold."

Open the windows and leave them open all night every night in the year, the health department physicians will advise. But at what cost? If you would be a mollycoddle.

Suppose you have joined the mollycoddles, adopted their never effective methods of keeping artificially warm, worn too much clothing all your life, heated six or eight degrees too high, and thus made yourself susceptible to every trifling change of temperature. weight of clothing, draft or exposure, vaso-motor nerve to sleep, is there any way to bring it back to life again? With your vaso-motor system shut down from luxury can you hope to become alert once more?

That depends entirely on you. You're dead for keeps if you are so grooved in your habits that you are unable to get out from under the great delusion. Here is the way to find out whether you are still young enough to reform:

On a clear cold evening start out for two miles of oxygen, and when you have booted it into a fair breeze take your hat to your head and go—

MAZOLA

Better cooking at less cost with Mazola, the pure oil from corn

Mazola is a vegetable oil from an edible source for deep frying, sautéing, shortening and salad dressings.

Foods fried in Mazola retain all of their natural flavor and are easy to digest.

Mazola does not transmit taste or odor from one food to another—can be used over and over again—a big factor in economy.

And because Mazola is a vegetable oil, it enables you to follow the plans of the Food Administration and save animal fats—butter, lard, suet.

Get Mazola from your grocer in pint, quart, half-gallon and gallon tins. Also ask for the free Mazola Book of Recipes—or write us direct.

Your money refunded if Mazola does not give entire satisfaction.

On any dish, garnish should be used sparingly. It is the very best of good form to call early upon a woman whose husband or other near relation has fallen into disgrace, who has had financial reverses, or has in some other manner met with adversity. She may refuse to see any visitors—and who could blame her?—nevertheless, if your sympathy is with her, go to her door and leave your card.

NEW FURNITURE FROM OLD
Many families have one or more old-fashioned wooden beds which are banished to the attic and never used. If the house carpenter has some spare time now he can remodel one into a first-class porch swing for next summer.

Chairs or ropes for hanging and the iron fasten them to the posts may be bought at the hardware store.

A few yards of cretonne for cushions and a small can of paint or varnish will do the trick and you have a good swing at very small cost.

THE TABLE
Creamed Sweetbreads—Two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon vinegar and one teaspoon salt. Boil fifteen minutes. Remove skins, membranes and pipes; cut in one-half inch pieces. Make a white sauce of one tablespoon butter, one-half tablespoon salt, one tablespoon flour, one-half small onion, one-half cup milk. Boil this until thick, pour over prepared sweetbreads and serve hot.

War Pudding (saves animal fats and wheat)—One-third cup margarine, one and one-quarter cups grated raw carrots, one cup wheat or graham flour, one-quarter cup sugar, one-quarter cup corn syrup, one teaspoon soda, spice or nut, one cup raisins or prunes or any fruit or peel like citron or orange grapefruit. Steam three hours. Use any sauce preferred.

Steamed Suet Puddings—Two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon salt, one cup chopped suet, one cup chopped raisins or currants, one cup sweet milk or water, one cup black molasses, cinnamon and nutmeg to taste and a pinch of salt. Thoroughly mix soda, salt and spices with flour, then rub in suet and add raisins. Mix milk and molasses and stir in the dry mixture. Pour into buttered pudding dish and steam three hours. Half this recipe will make enough for family of six. What is left may be used another time by steaming it again. Serve with a foamy sauce or any kind you prefer.

New Dessert—Slice one stale sponge cake into one-half inch slices. Stamp out as many round pieces with fancy cutter as you have persons to serve. Melt two tablespoons butter substitute in frying pan, brown in it the cut-out pieces of sponge cake, remove these to a platter. Drain one can peaches, having as many halves as you have cake. To the butter in pan add one-half cup white sugar, one-half cup tart fruit juice and grate half of one orange. When hot add peaches, cook five minutes. Serve on small separate plates one round of sponge cake, one-half peach on top and one-half orange. Dust with cinnamon and garnish with whipped cream. Serve one plate to each person. This is nice with afternoon tea.

Her Great Adventure

by Zoe Beckley

Had Claire Berton realized it, her capture of hard old Mrs. Tenning, the boarding house lady, was a real triumph and should have been a real triumph in her conquering march upon life. Caroline Tenning was no different from most women of her calling in that she had a story of "better days" only hers was true.

She had outlived two husbands and with two grown children married and with children of their own, Caroline Tenning was one of the world's survivors for the persons who paid to live beneath her roof. It was an absolute fact that Mrs. Tenning kept a board of man things about her.

She was by no means dependent on her earnings. In consequence her story was a story of a woman who had a fancy to go to a low rate. If she did not, she set a price so high that the guest usually went shuddering off. Mrs. Tenning's who paid extravagantly and knew it, but stayed because of her superb table and the well-kept of the house.

Claire had no idea how lucky she was in fact she teetered on the brink of going elsewhere because the room offered her was "eleven dollars a week" and she was a poor girl. It was about two-thirds what Mrs. Tenning had received for the room from her former tenant. Mrs. Tenning had the matter by her delicate and cunning bargaining way that you think of her, if she does receive you, do not stay long; and do not even remotely refer to her trouble.

Remarkable Mrs. Tenning, and without her maid departed for the dinner zone, leaving Claire breathless and thrilled with a sense of having sailed like a brave tramp steamer triumphantly into port.

She stood in the middle of the room and surveyed her berth. It was on the top floor, at the back, with two

AN INTERESTING CUSTOM.
An interesting custom which has been growing more common in the last few years is the selling of their cast-off clothes, by women of means.

Doubleless women have always been bachelors, but to the extent they now do and not as systematically. Once upon the rich dreamed of such a thing. Now the upper middle class do it, too.

The fashion magazines which have a regular department for handling the sale of such articles. Women who can afford to part with a gown, not because it is not wanted, but because it is tired of it, offer it for sale at a small part of its original value. People who have to discard gowns or give up furs because they are getting into mourning and partially replacing themselves in this way.

Just the other day I heard of a woman agent whose sole business is handling the half used finery of the rich, on a commission basis.

When Would Her Washwoman Avenge It?

A woman who has traded with her was talking about the custom and someone asked why the rich did not give their clothes away to the poor, just the same as the poor give theirs to the rich.

"Well," said the woman, "every year I have a very elaborate evening gown to wear to the three grand assemblies which are the big social events of our city. I seldom wear the gown anywhere else because it is so elaborate. Now the next year one doesn't quite like to appear in the same gown and so I send this to the agent. How could I give it to the poor? Would my washerwoman want it?"

A Chance to Give Away Elaborate Gowns.
Of course there is a measure of truth in that. To be sure, I happen to know of a society in New York to which many rich women donate their gowns to be sold for small sums to charity. To the young students at conservatories and dramatic schools who need elaborate gowns and haven't the money to buy new ones. But every woman may not know about this might decent charity.

Suppose in a way this custom is a great help to that part of the middle class which finds it such a constant struggle to keep up with appearances. People who couldn't take charity. May Enjoy This Privilege.

Think what infinite happiness it may bring to some of the married women who buy a lovely evening gown for twenty-five or thirty dollars and dazes the neighborhood with her splendor.

Of course one feels a repugnance to wearing clothes that have been worn, but the gowns we buy from shops have often been tried on as many times as these have been worn.

Sales of the Friendly Forest

"Now I've got you," said the wicked Red Fox, who, you remember in the last story, jumped out at Billy Bunny and the beavers as they sat on the bank of the brook singing the beaver song.

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" cried the Little Rabbit, and he opened his knapsack to look for a handkerchief to wipe his eyes with. But what do you think he did? He took out his little axe instead of the nice clean handkerchief, and threw it with all his might right at the head of the cruel Fox—not the handkerchief, you know, but the axe—and if that Fox hadn't jumped to one side and run away his knapsack would have been chopped off just as sure as you're reading this story! Now, wasn't that bright in the Little Bunny? Well, I think so, and so do other nice folks, for they came out of the water and pulled out the axe, which was stuck in a tree near by, and the kind Lady Beaver, who had made the chocolate cake, gave him a piece and patted him on the head and said he was a brave Bunny boy and that his mother ought to be proud of him!

"I must wait any longer," said the Little Rabbit after finishing the cake, so he said good-by and hopped away, and pretty soon he heard a voice singing.

"Who are you?" asked the Little Rabbit, sitting down and letting his knapsack slip to the ground. For it was pretty heavy and he was tired. "Who are you please?" he said again, but the voice kept right on singing.

Then the little rabbit looked all about him, under the fence and behind a log and around a tree and in the bushes, but the only thing he could see was a big sunflower. It couldn't be that, he thought. But it was the same, for in a minute the big sunflower leaned over and whispered into the little rabbit's ear, for he was standing up close, you see, looking up in the big yellow-faced flower:

"I am singing my glory song, little bunny. Listen, please, for I must finish."

"Beautiful, beautiful sky-blown sun. I'll try to glow the best I know. As every sunflower should. I shine in the light of your golden smile."

As you sail over the sky-blue sea, I turn each day my face your way, You're the light of my life, my love, 'Tis a very pretty song," said Billy Bunny.

"Do you like it?" replied the sunflower, gladly. "Well, maybe the next time you come this way I shall have some nice seeds to give you, for in the autumn my petals turn to seeds, and little bunnies are very fond of them."

Long Live The King

"So Mettlich is here!" he said. "A hasty journey. They must be eager."

"They must be in trouble," Kaiser observed dryly. And on that uncomplimentary comment King Karl slept, his face drawn into a weary smile.

But received the chancellor of Livonia, cordially the next morning, going himself to the lodge doorstep to meet his visitor, and there shaking hands with him.

"I am greatly honored, excellency," he said, with his twisted smile.

"And I, sire?"

But the chancellor watched him from under his shaggy brows. The messenger had escaped. By now Karl knew the story, knew of his midnight ride over the mountains, and the haste it indicated.

Karl himself led the way to his study, ignoring the chamberlain, and stood aside to let Mettlich enter. Then he followed and closed the door.

"It is a long time since you have honored Livonia with a visit," Karl observed. "Will you sit down?"

Karl himself did not sit. He stood negligently beside the mantel, an arm stretched along it.

"Not since the battle of the Ar. sire," replied the chancellor dryly. He had headed an army of invasion then. Karl smiled. "I hope that now your errand is more peaceful."

For answer the chancellor opened a portfolio he carried, and fumbled among its papers. But, having found the right one, he held it without opening it. "Before we come to that, sire, you have here, I believe, detained for some strange reason, a Captain Larisch, aide-de-camp to the crown prince of Livonia."

Karl glanced up quickly. "Perhaps, if you will describe this gentleman—"

"Nonsense," said the chancellor testily. "You have him. We have traced him here. Although by what authority you hold him I fail to understand. I am here to find out what you have done with him."

"Done with him?" echoed Karl. "If as Captain Larisch you refer to a madman who the night before last—"

"I do, sire. Madman," Karl said, in a new tone, stern enough of a man. He stole certain documents. That he has not suffered for it already was because—well, because I believed that the unfortunate distrust between your country and mine, excellency, was about to end."

A threat that, undoubtedly. Let the arrangement between Livonia and Livonia be made, with Hedwig to seal the bargain, and Nikky was safe enough. But let Livonia demand too much, or not agree at all, and Nikky was lost. Thus did Nikky Larisch play his small part in the game of nations.

"Suppose," said Karl unctuously, "that we discuss first another more important matter. I confess to a certain impatience." He bowed slightly.

The chancellor hesitated. Then he glanced thoughtfully at the paper in his hand.

Through a long luncheon, the two alone and even the servants dismissed, through a longer afternoon, negotiations went on. Mettlich fought hard on some points, only to meet defeat. Karl stood firm. The great fortresses on the border most heretofore contain only nominal garrisons. For the seaport strip he had almost doubled his price. The railroad must be completed within two years.

"The Princess Hedwig," Karl said suddenly. "She has been told, of course?"

"Not officially. She knows, however."

"How does she regard it?"

The chancellor hesitated. "Like most young women, she would prefer making her own choice. But that," he added hastily, "is but a whim. She is a lovely and amiable girl. When the time comes, she will be willing enough."

Karl stared out through one of the heavily curtained windows. He was not so sure. And the time had gone by when he would have colored the taming of a girl. Now he wanted peace—he was not paying a price for it?—and children, to inherit, his well-managed kingdom. And perhaps—who knows?—a little love. Before him rose a vision of Hedwig, her frank eyes, her color that rose and fell, her soft, round body.

"You have no reason to believe that she has—looked elsewhere?"

"None, sire," said the chancellor stoutly.

By late afternoon all was arranged, papers signed and witnessed, and the two signatures affixed, the one small and cramped—a soldier's hand; the other bold and flowing—the scrawl of a king. And Hedwig, save for the ceremony, was the bride of Karl of Livonia.

It was then that the chancellor rose and stretched his legs. "And now, sire," he said, "since we are friends and no longer enemies, you will, I know, release that mad boy of mine."

"When do you start back?"

"Within an hour."

"Before that time," said Karl, "you shall have him, chancellor."

And with that Mettlich was forced to be content. He trusted Karl no more now than he ever had. But he made his adieu with no hint of trouble in his face.

Karl stood for a moment in the open air. It was done, then, and well done. It was hard to realize. He turned to the west, where for so long behind the mountains had lurked an enemy. A new era was opening; peace, disarmament, a quiet and prosperous land. He had spent his years of war and women. That was over.

When he returned to the study the agent Kaiser was already there. But Karl, big with plans for the future, would have been alone, and eyed the agent with disfavor.

"Well," he demanded.

"We have been able to search the chancellor's rooms, sire," the agent said, "for the articles mentioned last night—a card case, gloves, and a silk handkerchief, belonging to the prisoner upstairs. He is Captain Larisch, aide-de-camp to the crown prince of Livonia."

He had expected Karl to be impressed. But Karl only looked at him. "I know that," he said coldly. "You are always just a little late with your information, Kaiser."

Something like malice showed in the agent's face. "Then you also know, sire, that it is this Captain Larisch with whom rumor couples the name of the Princess Hedwig?" He stepped back a pace or two at sight of Karl's face.

"You requested such information, sire."

For answer, Karl pointed to the door. For some time after he had dismissed the agent, Karl paced his library alone. Kaiser brought no unverified information. Therefore the thing was true. Therefore he had had his enemy in his hand, and now was pledged to let him go. For a time, then, Karl paid the penalty of many misdeeds. His triumph was ashes in his mouth.

What if this boy, infatuated with Hedwig, had hidden somewhere on the road Olga Loschek's letter? What then, if he recovered it and took it to Hedwig? What if—

But at last he sent for the prisoner upstairs, and waited for him with both jealousy and fear in his eyes.

Five minutes later Nikky Larisch was ushered into the red study, and having bowed, an insolent young bow at that, stood and eyed the king.

"I have sent for you to release you," said Karl.

Nikky drew a long breath. "I am grateful, sire."

"You have been interested for by the chancellor of Livonia, General Mettlich, who has just gone."

Nikky bowed.

Karl fixed him with cold eyes. "But before you take leave of us," he said ironically, "I should like the true story of the night before last. Somehow, somewhere, a letter intended for me was exchanged for a blank paper. I want that letter."

"I know no more than you, sire. It is not reasonable that I would have taken the risk I took for an envelope containing nothing."

"For that matter," said his majesty, "there was nothing reasonable about anything you did."

And now Karl played his trump card, played it with watchful eyes on Nikky's face. He would see if report spoke the truth, if this blue-eyed boy was in love with Hedwig. He was a jealous man, this Karl of the cold eyes, jealous and passionate. Not as a king, then, watching a humble soldier of Livonia, but as man to man, he gazed at Nikky.

"For fear that loyalty keeps you silent, I may say to you that the old troubles between Livonia and Livonia are over."

"I do not understand, sire."

Karl hesitated. Then, with his twisted smile, he cast the rigid etiquette of such matters to the winds. "It is very simple," he said. "There will be no more trouble between these two neighboring countries, because a marriage has today been arranged—a marriage between the Princess Hedwig, his majesty's granddaughter, and myself."

For a moment Nikky Larisch closed his eyes.

The anniversary of the death of Prince Hubert dawned bright and sunny. The place showed a thin covering of snow, which clung wet and sticky, to the trees; but by nine o'clock most of it had disappeared, and Prince Ferdinand William Otto was informed that the excursion would take place.

Two motors took the party, by back streets, to the landing stage. In the first were Annunziata, Hedwig, and the countess, and at the last moment Otto had salvaged Miss Braithwaite from the second car, and begged a place for her with him. A police agent sat beside the chauffeur. Also another car just ahead of the first contained other agents, by Mettlich's order before his departure—a plain black motor, without the royal arms.

In the second machine followed a pair of the suite, Hedwig's lady in waiting, two gentlemen of the court, in parade dress, and Father Gregory, come from his monastery at Ezel to visit his old friend, the king.

At the landing stage a small crowd had gathered on seeing the red carpet laid and the gilt ropes put up, which indicated a royal visit. A small girl, with a hastily secured bouquet in her hot hands, stood nervously waiting, in deference to the anniversary, the flowers were tied with a black ribbon.

Annunziata grumbled when she saw the crowd, and the occupants of the first car looked them over carefully. It remained for Hedwig to spy the black ribbon. In the confusion, she slipped over to the little girl, who went quite white with excitement. "They are lovely," Hedwig whispered, "but please take off the black ribbon." The child eyed her anxiously. "It will come to pieces, highness."

"Take the ribbon from your hair. It will be beautiful."

Make Your Own Cough Syrup and Save Money

Better than the ready-made kind. Easily prepared at home.

The finest cough syrup that money can buy, costing only about one-fifth as much as ready-made preparations, can easily be made up at home. The way is to take hold of a bottle of Eucalypti, coughs, throat and chest colds will really make you enthusiastic about it.

Any druggist can supply you with six ounces of Pinex (60 cents a bottle). Pour this into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Shake thoroughly and it is ready for use. The total cost is about 65 cents and gives you a full pint—a family supply—of a most effective, pleasant tasting remedy. It keeps perfectly.

It is truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed or swollen throat membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough will disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic cough, whooping cough or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and is known the world over for its prompt healing effect on the throat membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "3 1/2 ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

unusually, the child forgot her speech, and eagerly thrust the bouquet, tied with a large pink bow, into the hands of Prince Ferdinand William Otto.

"Here," she said. It was, perhaps, the briefest, and therefore the most agreeable presentation speech the crown prince had ever heard.

The quay receded, red carpet and all. Only the glare of the band followed them, and with the persistence of sound over water, followed them for some time.

It was Hedwig who showed the most depression on the trip, after all. Early that morning she had attended mass in the royal chapel. All the household had been there, and the king had been wheeled in, and had sat in his box, high in the wall, the door of which opened from his private suite.

Looking up, Hedwig had seen his gray old face set and rigid. The court had worn black, and the chapel was draped in crape. She had fallen on her knees and had tried dutifully to pray for the dead Hubert. But her whole soul was crying out for help for herself.

So now she sat very quiet, and wondered about things.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto sat by the rail and watched the green banks flying by.

When no one was looking, he broke a flower from the bouquet and tucked it overboard. He pretended that it was a boat, and was going down to Karala, filled with soldiers ready to fight.

Dinner Stories

The other day the following conversation took place between two small boys:

"Aw," said Jimmie, "you're afraid to fight; that's all it is."

"Now, I'm not, protested Johnnie.

"But if I fight my ma'll find it out and lick me."

"How'll she find it out, eh?"

"She'll see the doctor goin' to your house."

"Dat tree has been struck three times by lightning," said Sam.

"Impossible, Sam. Lightning never strikes twice in the same place, you know."

"Well, say, boss, the thing what struck it yesterday bears a striking resemblance to what struck it before."

The junior clerk sought out his employer and timidly addressed him.

"Could I have a fortnight's leave of absence, sir, to attend the wedding of a friend?"

"It must be a dear friend for you to want all that time?" inquired the boss sarcastically.

"Well, after the wedding, sir, she—she'll be my wife!"

The lady of the house, engaging a new cook, expressed the wish that if Fido came into the kitchen he should be kindly treated there.

"Oh, yes, ma'am," replied cook. "I'll be good to him; indeed, I always believe in making friends with the dogs—they save so much dishwashing!"

The lady bus conductors can generally hold their own with their would-be facetious customers.

Young man gave a hat and when the vehicle pulled up he inquired:

"Is there any room in this Noah's Ark of yours, or are you full up?"

The conductress naively replied: "Oh, we've got all the animals except the donkey; you'd better step inside."

Sgt. G. S. Peacock (marked X), the brother of Mrs. W. A. Robinson of South Bend, Ind.

In an official British war photograph recently appearing in newspapers throughout the country, Mrs. W. A. Robinson of South Bend, Ind., discovered her brother, Sgt. G. S. Peacock, who had enlisted with the Canadian forces early in the war. Shortly before seeing the photo Mrs. Robinson had received a letter from her brother with some account of the very incident pictured and mention of the commanding officer of the battery who may be seen on the left of Peacock in the photograph holding a bag.

SAFE FARMING

FERTILE SOIL MEANS PROSPERITY

By P. G. HOLDEN.

WHEN we deal with the soil we are dealing with the real fundamental of agriculture. It takes two things to make a great country--the soil and the people.

We may have a fertile soil, but if we have shiftless, inefficient people living on it, we are not going to make much out of it. We may have a good humanity, but without a productive soil we cannot make a great country.

Walking over it all our lives, the soil has become of little importance to many of us. Some people think the land we are tilling today is the same it was a hundred years ago. We do not realize that the soil is constantly changing, just as people are changing from day to day.

The soil is not an inert mass; it is the scene of life and activity. Soil that is inactive is unproductive. Circulation of air and water, absorption of heat, evaporation, decay of plants and soil particles, countless minute organisms--all these are the activities of fertile soil.

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Feb. 5.—Quite a number of Germans in this locality are preparing to register at the postoffice as required by law. They are required to file their pictures at the time of registration, and one photographer in the city stated Saturday that he had taken no less than forty different pictures for this purpose. In speaking of the required registration one German stated that he came to America and settled in Rock county when he was twenty-seven years of age. For some unknown reason he had failed to take his citizenship papers. He wore out his citizenship papers at a Red Cross button, was a subscriber to both Liberty loans, had purchased three stamps, and had two sons who had enlisted in the regular army at the time war was declared. He wanted the fact that he had failed to take the proper steps to become a citizen of, as he termed it, "the best country on earth."

Soldier's Parents' Notice.
The American Red Cross desires to call your attention to the fact that men who entered the service before October 15th, 1917, must apply for war risk insurance before February 12, 1918. Those who enlisted later have 120 days in which to apply. I have just received notice to this effect and have a supply of blanks which are the kind to be filled out by men in the service who desire insurance. Any parent desiring to send such a blank to a son, noting that war risk insurance be applied for, may secure the blank from me. P. O. Holt, chairman Edgerton branch.

The Patton Center Red Cross will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Pomroy, Thursday, February 7, being finished articles. A girl committee will hold a young people's dancing party at the town hall at Indian Ford on Friday evening. The proceeds will be devoted to Red Cross work.

The passenger train due here at 7:40 last evening did not arrive in the city until after midnight.

Lee Alder returned Monday from a trip through the south, having visited Waco and friends in Florida while a flood of water was in the city that was very extreme.

T. Thompson was a Milwaukee visitor on Monday.

The ladies of the local Belgium children's relief work committee met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Dickerson yesterday afternoon. The ladies are assisting old garments and the sewing machine to be used by the children. Anyone having old garments are requested to have them washed and left at the library for the committee.

Miss Allen Melnick and Miss Mahk Strassburg returned to Madison today where they are attending the continuation school.

The Belgian Relief club met at the home of Mrs. Jack Dickerson yesterday.

The Knitting club gave a theatre party last evening in honor of Miss Marie Babcock, who leaves Feb. 13th for Chicago, where she will take up nursing in the Lakeview hospital.

Miss Carrie Dickerson returned Monday from a visit with her parents in Broadhead.

From now on the Gazette will be on sale at the P. E. Ash book store and people requiring a paper can secure one there.

Germans on Stamps.
Eternal vigilance is not only the price of liberty as our fathers knew it, liberty plain and unadorned, but recent scientific discoveries have added thereto the admonition that eternal vigilance is the price of freedom from many varieties of germs undreamt of by the fathers of the republic. We are now told to beware of the normal bacterial flora of postage stamps! The cry of alarm is raised by the New York Medical Record. Don't lick the stamps, no matter what their denomination. They may be bacteria laden, and under certain conditions may easily convey pathogenic types, especially colon diptheria and tuberculous bacillus. The writer of the article on these stamps that are afflicted or are under suspicion of harboring bacterial flora advocates a movement to have installed "in all places dispensing postage stamps a moistening device of some kind," and says that this movement "would be started with beneficial results in the postoffices of the United States."

Removes Hatpin Danger.
Clipping the point from a safety pin, sliding the coil over a hatpin and closing the clasp over the point of the latter will protect it from injuring a person.

WHAT TO DO WITH PRISONERS IS PROBLEM FOR ALLIES; KAISER DOESN'T LET IT WORRY GERMANY

Above—Austrian prisoners taken by Italians on Asiago plateau. Below, right—German sailor prisoners at play in prison camp at Fort McPherson, Ga. Left—A Prinz Eitel Friedrich sailor at Fort McPherson carving out a full-rigged schooner.

The problem of caring for prisoners of war is a big one for the allies, who still believe in humane treatment. They will not do as the Kaiser does—drive their captives to work at the slavery tasks until they are worked to death—and they dare not give too much liberty to the prisoners for fear of intrigues and plots. The crews from interned vessels in the United States are given great freedom at their places of internment and spend the time carving out miniature merchantmen. Note that the sailor in one picture is fastening an American flag to the stern of the boat.

IT'S ANY WAY TO GET PRIZED COAL IN NEW YORK: BOATS, ICE WAGONS, LIMOUSINES—ALL CARRY IT

Top—Barges battling harbor ice to get coal to New York. Bottom—Doling coal by sackboat to public from ice wagon (left) and limousine with coal on seat with driver going out to a Riverside drive home.

The coal shortage which has been causing so much suffering throughout the country hits New York city especially hard. It has been responsible for some queer sights in the metropolis, as for instance the one depicted here, in which a wealthy woman is shown taking a sack of coal to her Riverside drive home on the seat of her high-priced foreign-made limousine. On the streets long lines may be seen at the end of ice wagons buying coal in sackboats. In the harbor barges battle their way through the ice to bring coal to the city.

AMERICAN OFFICER WOUNDED AT CAMBRAI RECOVERING IN HOSPITAL

The first photograph of the American officer wounded in the recent encounter of American engineers with a German raiding party shows him well on the way to recovery in a London hospital. Lieut. Delsey and his men were at work close behind an advancing line in a recent drive against Cambrai. Lieut. Delsey was hit by a German "whip-bang" during the Opal Without Color.

The opal has no color in the sense of pigmentation. To break open an opal in order to observe its hues would be equivalent to killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. Neither golden eggs nor rainbow hues would be found.

Camera Locates Sunken Vessels.
A powerful electric submarine camera that a New York man has invented is expected to get as much information about sunken vessels in a short time as it would take experienced divers days to gather.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips. By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have. You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

THE GAZETTE'S MOTORIST PROBLEM DEPARTMENT

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
The lights on my car are not as strong and bright as formerly. The connections all seem good and tight. Why I run the engine to charge the battery, all the cells bubble and gas freely except one. Do you think this cell is the cause of the lights being dim? Please tell me how I can restore it to a healthy condition?

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
We assume that you keep the defective cell filled with water. Then the cell must be short-circuited and dead, needing replacement. Have the battery inspected and the damaged plates replaced without delay.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
Please let me know how to stop a leak in a radiator. It keeps dripping all the time, and I have to refill it two or three times a day.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
You do not state what type of radiator you have. A cellular radiator is hard to stop leaking, but so understand that there is a preparation on the market which dissolves in the hot water and will stop a small leak. If yours is a tubular radiator, it may be repaired temporarily by plugging both ends of the tube with a cork or a piece of chewing gum. Later permanent repair may be made with solder. If the leak is at the surface where it can be reached a drop of solder is all that is necessary.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
I find it difficult to start the engine these cold mornings. Can you give some cold weather hints that will help get the engine started? I would appreciate them very much, as I have no starter on my car, and do not enjoy spinning it.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
If ordinary priming is not sufficient, warm carburetor by wrapping hot cloths, wrung out in hot water, around the carburetor and pipes. Priming the cylinders through the relief valves will help. Either is better than gasoline for very cold weather, as it evaporates at all temperatures and gives a very snappy explosion. Never resort to the cooling system with hot water. This never fails.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
Recently you advised testing compression by opening all compression cocks except one, and cranking engine. How can I locate the weak cylinder on a Ford engine which has no compression cock? With crank engine at least two revolutions, and note if one or more cylinders are weak. Remove all spark plugs, except one in No. 1 cylinder. Crank and see if it is the weak one. Remove that plug and put into another cylinder. Crank that, and note if it is the weak cylinder. Continue until the weak cylinder is found.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
Can a person drive a car for the owner, proving it is not for hire? Does the insurance cover the car if the owner is not present? Car is insured in full.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
According to New York State law, any friend of the owner, eighteen years of age or over, may drive the car with the owner's permission. If he does not do so for hire, whether the owner be with him or not, in New York City, however, no one may drive without a license, except drivers from other States passing through or visiting. Unless it is distinctly stated in the insurance policy that the insurance on the car does not cover any and every person driving it.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
My car is a 1917 with a recently replaced carburetor caught fire, and I had trouble putting it out, consequently I have been in dread of a fire ever since. Please tell me what causes a carburetor to catch fire, so that I can avoid the danger in future.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
Topping back at carburetor may be due to a lean mixture, leaky inlet valve, short circuit, distributor wired up incorrectly, or interrupter shifted on shaft. If there is much gasoline around the carburetor, due to excessive priming, it may catch fire. Go easy.

HELPFUL HINTS.

Jerky action of the engine, accompanied by minor explosions, indicates that the engine is missing explosions. This means that one or more cylinders fail to fire and that the unburned gas under the piston rings is forced out of the cylinder by the flame from the next cylinder that fires. This gives irregular, jerky action, that is very disagreeable.

The causes of missing are rich mixture, loss of compression, indicated troubles. Test loss of compression by cranking engine by hand and noting the resistance of each cylinder. If on cranking the engine has less resistance than the others, it must be corrected.

A rich mixture is shown by pungent odor of the exhaust, sometimes accompanied by black smoke. This is corrected by adjusting the amount of gasoline or air. If these adjustments are marked, it is easily seen if they have been made.

Test spark by removing high-tension wire from spark plug and holding it near the cylinder. Run engine, and see if a good spark jumps. Try this at every wire. If no spark jumps at any wire, the trouble is long that wire or in the distributor. If a good spark is shown at every terminal, and the engine misses explosions, the trouble is in the spark plug.

Locate the missing cylinder by opening relief cocks and looking for flame. Or short circuit each spark plug in turn by means of a screw driver. If engine stops, or there is a change in the sound of the exhaust, the cylinder is firing. If there is no difference when the plug is short-circuited, it shows that the plug is misfiring. Remove plug, take apart and clean, using special spark plug brush. If core is cracked, it must be replaced. But plug parts together and use plus cap to about twenty-five thousands of an inch.

over the above points carefully. Pass a fine wire screen over air inlet or exhaust inlet pipe at least a foot upward and away from carburetor. If this pipe connects with a hot air stove around the exhaust manifold, all the better. There is then a minimum of danger from fire.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
I have obtained a hydrometer for testing the battery, following your advice, but if it becomes broken I should not be able to test the battery. Please let me know through the Motoring Department if there is any other way of testing a battery. I am frequently a long way from any auto store and like to have several tests of the battery made.

Carry a volt-meter and test battery when it is delivering current to engine or lights. 2.25 volts per cell shows full charge and 1.75 volts per cell shows discharge. Small trouble lamp may be used, but it burns dimly the battery is low, but it gives no warning in advance. The hydrometer is best and will last for years if carefully protected against breaking.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
Some of my motoring friends claim that the brakes must be applied gently and others apply them vigorously. Please let me know what is right.

The brakes must always be applied gently otherwise they are apt to lock the wheels and cause them to skid. The braking or retarding effect is exerted between the brake band and brake drum, while the wheel turns because of the friction between the rubber tire and the road. If the brakes are jammed on suddenly the wheels are locked and the car slides forward. The best way to stop the car is to throttle back when approaching the stopping place, then use the clutch, and allow the car to coast, gradually applying the brakes. If you stop the distance correctly, the brakes will not have to be applied with force, thus saving the mechanism and the lining.

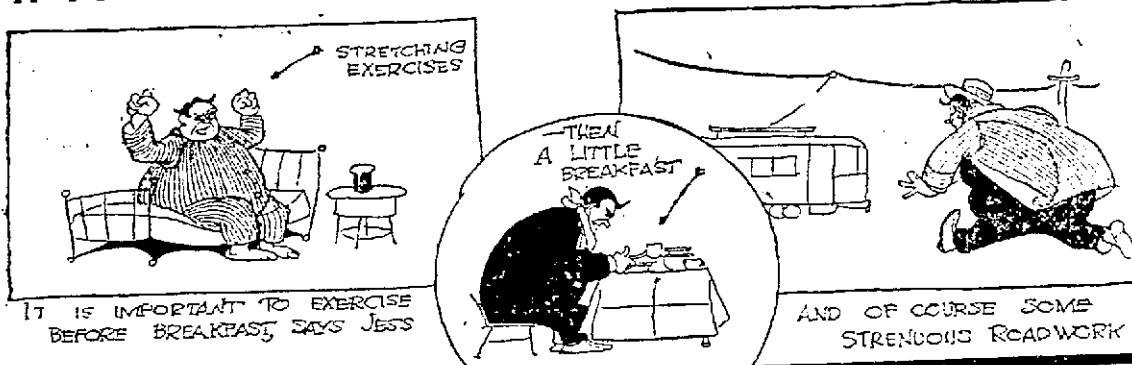

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
Please tell me what the trouble is with an engine that misfires on one or more cylinders when throttled down or when pulling on a hill. It is not always the same cylinder which misfires. The engine is a four-cylinder and has recently been overhauled.

Test carburetor for water and see if adjustments are right. Look for leak in inlet manifold. Then examine health of valves thoroughly, as a loose connection would readily cause the trouble you mention. As so clean and adjust the circuit breaker points.

Motoring Department, The Gazette.
Please answer through your Motoring Department if pure graphite, used in lubricating oil, is injurious to an engine. An answer will be appreciated. Use only the purest, obtained from a reliable source. Pure graphite may be used sparingly in the engine with good results. Use only the purest, obtained from a reliable source. IF YOU WANT TO TAKE OFF FAT TRY WILLARD'S METHODS

Jess Willard declares that for some while he has been in training privately and though he has published little about it he will soon be in excellent shape for a return to the ring. Those who have seen Willard recently seem to believe that his training has been mostly such strenuous measures as shown above. If you weigh between 300 and 400 pounds and would like to take off an odd hundred or so you might try Willard's methods and see how they work.

Henry Ford Will Help Win The War To Turn Out One Boat a Day

READ THIS—

FORD TO TURN OUT CHASER EVERY DAY

Quick Delivery of New Anti-Submarine Craft is Contemplated.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 1.—Production plans for the navy's new anti-submarine craft contemplates the delivery of a finished boat every day when the cycle of production is complete. The first vessel has already been started in the fabricating shops at the Ford Motor company plant at Detroit.

To turn out a boat a day after the elapse of several months requires that a boat a day be started. Materials that go into construction are fed into one end of the plant as rapidly as it is planned to produce the completed product at the other.

The power will be furnished by geared turbines and since stability and reliability was sought no effort has been made to go beyond a safe and conservative speed estimate.

The boats will all be fabricated at the Ford plant, progressing by stages and they are launched at Detroit. They will measure 200 feet and displace about 500 tons.

The number of boats ordered has not been revealed, but only a substantial order would justify the preparations for production which must be made.

It is known that while they do not run fast anything strikingly new in submarine warfare, they will be armed and equipped in such a way as to effect a decided improvement in the patrol service.

In order to assist my customers I will store your car free of charge and protect it by insurance if you are not ready to take it when it comes.
